Kathy Brothers
Chief Credit Officer
The Bank of Nashville
Nashville, Tennessee

Brothers is the Chief Credit Officer of The Bank of Nashville, a community bank owned by Synovus Financial Corp, and headquartered in Nashville, Tennessee. In that capacity she manages the bank's commercial and retail portfolios, credit underwriting and approval, and special assets, and is a member of the bank's operating committee. Prior to joining The Bank of Nashville, she was a partner in a Nashville area law firm, focusing on real estate and commercial banking. Her career in banking began as a credit analyst in the International Division of Commerce Union Bank, now Bank of America. Brothers has been a lender in the international, middle market and large corporate departments, and a credit officer for treasury management and large corporate, healthcare, commercial real estate, and residential real estate. Additionally, she has handled workouts and bankruptcies. Brothers received her BA in political science (Phi Beta Kappa) from the University of Kentucky, a JD from the UK College of Law, and an MA from the Patterson School of Diplomacy and International Commerce at UK. She is licensed to practice law in Kentucky and Tennessee, and also is a member of the Nashville and American Bar Associations.
