

INSTRUCTOR

Robert Hudson
Standard Chartered Bank
London
United Kingdom

Hudson has spent over 20 years working on risk management and risk analytics. In 1994, he joined Standard Chartered Bank as head of Group Portfolio Management with a brief to introduce quantitative techniques for measuring credit risk. In the late 1990s, he took over as head of Market Risk for Standard Chartered and oversaw the introduction of value-at-risk and stress-testing techniques for the treasury operations. Subsequently, he became head of Group Risk Analytics with oversight for all risk measurement within the bank. In 2004, Hudson was seconded to the Financial Services Authority, where he was a member of the FSA's Credit Risk Policy and was U.K. representative on a number of international committees. Prior to 1994, he worked in government and for Barclays in treasury and credit risk management.
