What does innovation in technology really mean and how is it shaping your businesses?

What are clients asking for?

What does the industry need?

What are the biggest opportunities?

What are the biggest barriers?

Embrace it, ignore it, or wait and see?

Can market participants afford to wait?

Will product expertise beat disruption?

Will market forces determine the outcome?

Are funds embracing similar technologies?

Where does this push fees, costs and budgets?

How far can this go before regulators step in and what can they do?

Does a regulator need to worry about efficiencies and increased capacity?

Fintech in finance is attracting regulator attention. Does this slow innovation?

Does regulatory oversight mean the barriers to entry are too high?

Does this mean that humans are going away and its all machines running the show? Does half out audience need to worry?!
